Terms and conditions of use of modular stands provided by Exponor

The stands, materials and furnishings provided with the stand are hired to Exhibitors.

Therefore, at the end of an event for which a stand was booked, it must be returned in the same condition in which it was provided.

Exhibitors may not make any change to components provided, and may not fold or screw, bond and/or affix any item or additional part to stand structures and/or components likely to leave any kind of mark, glue or other damage.

At the end of an event, Exponor's operations team will conduct an exhaustive inspection of stand condition, documenting it, with photos if necessary, to ensure that Exhibitors have met their obligation to look after and keep their stands in the same condition as they were when they were provided.

If any damage to stands is found or noticed which has changed their original condition and cannot easily be removed or repaired without damaging other components, Exponor will bill the costs of the damage.

Generally, if any kind of damage is caused to a stand by an Exhibitor, Exponor hereby reserves the right to pass the cost of repairing the damage or the obligation to replace damaged components onto the Exhibitor at the end of the exhibition.

If an Exhibitor finds any furnishings or components which were not initially agreed on a stand provided, we would be grateful if they would notify this or arrange for them to be removed immediately, or Exponor will bill the Exhibitor for use not initially agreed.
